

THIERRY DE MONTBRIAL

Président et fondateur de la WPC

Minister Yun Byung-se, Minister of Foreign Affairs for offering this dinner to us tonight. Thank you very much Mr. Minister, thank you for everything because you were extremely helpful for the preparation of this meeting of the WPC in Seoul. So, the rule of the game tonight is: first, you are going to eat and I wish you bon appétit. Then, after the main course, the Minister will take the floor, so we will have, I think, a presentation that will complement all the extremely important and interesting exposés we had today on Korean politics, starting with the remarkable speech of the President, and then the Minister accepts to answer a few questions. And then, you can have your dessert, you can continue to talk, to drink, because I suppose that most of you consider they have not worked enough today and they are still full of energy to be spent. And that is also the case of the Minister by the way, who, I understand, had a very tough day, as every day I must say. So thank you again, bon appétit, et à tout à l'heure.
