

Agnès Touraine

CEO of Act III Consultants

Agnès Touraine started her carrier with McKinsey. She then joined Lagardère Group for 10 years where she was successively Senior Vice President, Strategy and Head of Hachette's Consumer Publishing division.

In 1995, Agnès joined CEP Communication to launch Liris Interactive, one of France's first start-ups in multimedia, which became Havas Interactive renamed Vivendi Universal Publishing, a 4B company in book publishing and video games.

In 2003, Agnès founded Act III Consultants, a management-consulting firm dedicated to digital transformation. She is also a Venture Partner for JVP, one of the leading VC Companies in Israel.

In the UK Agnès Touraine has been non-executive Director of LastMinute.com, Cable & Wireless and ITV. In France, she is currently seating on the Board of Darty Plc, Néopost and Coriolis.

She also seats on the Boards of several non-for profit organizations as French American Foundation, IFA and the Women's Forum.

Agnès Touraine graduated from Sciences Po Paris and Columbia University (MBA).