

André Caillé

Director of several corporations

André Caillé is a director within several corporations. He usually acts as a senior advisor. From 2004 to 2007, he served as Chairman of the World Energy Council. From 1978 to 2005, he held many positions, including Deputy Minister of the Environment of Quebec, President and Chief Executive Officer and Chairman of the Board of Hydro-Québec, and President and Chief Executive Officer of Gas Metro Inc., formerly known as Gas Metropolitan Inc. He is also involved within a number of charitable organizations. He has a Bachelor's in specialized chemistry as well as a Master's and Doctorate in physical chemistry from the Montreal University. He has been the recipient of many prestigious awards, including the Pierre De Celles Award, and was also made a Knight of the Legion of Honor of the French Republic. He is a Member of the Order of Canada and an Officer of the National Order of Quebec. The Montreal University, the National Center for Scientific Research and Royal Military College of Canada have all awarded him honorary doctorates.