Publications 3: World Bank Flagship Reports

Directed the Bank’s annual “Global Economic Prospects” report 1994 to 2008 and the annual “Global Development Finance” report 1998 to 2008. This entailed development of the concept working with a task-manager(s), reviewing and editing the drafts at 3 or 4 stages, providing analytical contributions, and taking the lead role in World Bank Board discussion and global dissemination. Flagship reports covered various “here and now” issues such as the global outlook, as well as in-depth analysis of thematic areas. These thematic areas included: the global financial crisis (2008), the long-term economic outlook, private capital flows to developing countries, migration and remittances, the Doha process, regionalism, technology diffusion, the Asian Financial Crisis, South-South FDI, the globalization of international finance, etc.
