

Jide Rotilu

Co-founder and product manager of TBCA.ng
Former Senior consultant at Deloitte Nigeria

Obajide Rotilu is the co-founder and product manager of TBCA.ng [The Best Consultants in Africa], Africa's leading destination for quality and premium independent consultants interested in project-based work for global startups, SMEs and Large Enterprises. TBCA connects on-demand independent consultants with businesses who need critical business skills to grow their business, at an affordable cost.

In 2016, Obajide was named as an Atlantic Dialogues Emerging Leader and was the only Nigerian selected for the leadership programme.

Obajide is passionate about entrepreneurship, innovation, cybersecurity and filmmaking. He's a firm believer in the power of technology to enable projects based work to utilise professional skills and reduce Africa's unemployment rates. Obajide is also a seasoned management consultant and a cybersecurity subject-matter expert.

Prior to founding TBCA, Obajide was a Senior Consultant at Deloitte Nigeria focusing on Cybersecurity, Risk Advisory and Governance. He was previously also in the Audit department of the firm. He served on the board of the Deloitte West Africa Strategy team and received multiple awards for innovation including the 'In-tune-with-Deloitte' award and the Deloitte PAN African Innovation award. He has completed multiple consulting engagements for global, local and multinational clients, first as a Senior Consultant at Deloitte and as an independent consultant.

Obajide was also part of the team that represented Deloitte Nigeria at the 2015 Global Cyberlympics competition in Washington DC. His daily work included helping organizations transform their security processes, implement cybersecurity strategy, and be better vigilant of cyberattacks.

An Engineer by training, Obajide was selected as a Semi-finalist at the 2015 Mandela Washington Fellowship. Obajide also helped launch a successful online comedy sketch featured on prominent Nigerian blogs.

He also serves on the board of the Meet-a-need-today Foundation in Lagos, Nigeria.

Obajide is a thought leader on Innovation and the future and has written articles on a variety of topics featured on The Huffington Post, CP-Africa [Celebrating Progress Africa], Sahara Reporters and more.

He is an associate of the International Information Systems Security Certification Consortium and a member of ISACA. He is also an Alumni Ambassador for Queen Mary University of London where he mentors and advises incoming students.

Obajide holds a B.Eng from Covenant University and an MSc. from Queen Mary University of London, where he was awarded a part scholarship and graduated with a Distinction. Obajide lives in Lagos, Nigeria with his wife and is fully determined to get more Africans working on projects-based jobs through his company TBCA.ng and is interested in having national policy discussions aimed at reducing unemployment.