

Razvan Nicolescu

Former Romanian minister for energy

Răzvan Nicolescu is the Executive Lead Advisor for the Energy & Resources practice in Deloitte. He has more than 15 year experience in the energy sector, holding positions both in the public and private sectors. He was the Energy Attaché of Romania to the European Union for almost four years. During this period he was involved in the successful negotiations of the energy -climate change and the third market liberalization packages.

Between September 2008 and February 2014 he held the position of director for Public and Regulatory Affairs of Petrom, the biggest Romanian energy company. During this period he initiated a successful program to improve energy efficiency in the company's filling stations with the financial support of European Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

In 2014 Razvan was the Romanian minister for energy without being member of any political party. In this position Razvan contributed to the biggest IPO (Electrica SA) which has ever taking place successfully on the Romania capital market.

Razvan Nicolescu has been the Chairman of the Administrative Board of the European Agency for the Cooperation of Energy Regulators (ACER), being designated member of this body by the Council of the European Union in 2009. The Administrative Board is responsible for the governance of this institution. During his mandate ACER became a leading EU institution in terms of Conflict of Interests Policies.

He has an electrical engineering educational background and graduated a Master Business Administration Program at Solvay Business School, Brussels, Belgium.