

Razvan Nicolescu

Former Romanian Minister for Energy

Răzvan Nicolescu is the Energy and Sustainability Industry Leader of Deloitte Central Europe. He has almost 20 years of experience in the energy and climate change sector, holding positions both in the public and private sectors. In 2014 he was the Romanian minister of energy.

Between 2006-2008 he was the Energy Attaché of Romania to the European Union. During this period he was involved in the successful negotiations of the energy-climate change and the third market liberalization packages.

Between September 2008 and February 2014 he held the position of director for Public and Regulatory Affairs of Petrom, the biggest Romanian energy company. During this period he managed a successful program to improve the sustainability of the company.

Razvan Nicolescu is also experienced at the EU level. He has been the Chairman of the Administrative Board of the European Agency for the Cooperation of Energy Regulators (ACER), being designated member of this body by the Council of the European Union in 2009. The Administrative Board is responsible for the governance of this institution. During his mandate ACER became a leading EU institution.

He has an electrical engineering educational background and graduated a Master Business Administration Program at Solvay Brussels School of Management (Belgium).