

Pierre Prioux

President of Alcen

A graduate of the Ecole Polytechnique (1971) and Insead (1975), he began his career as CEO of Tabur Marine (1978-1981) and Dufour (1976-1981).

He then joined the Matra Group (1981-1990). After running one of their watchmaking divisions, he took on the role of Senior Vice President at the head of 4 divisions (automotive electronics, robotics, computer-assisted design and watchmaking).

In 1990, he took over diversification for the SAE Group, then 2 years later decided to leave behind salaried employment to become an entrepreneur.

In parallel to constituting the Alcen family group, he founded and managed telecommunications operator Kaptech (1998-2001) and parts manufacturer Cirpack (2000-2005).

Since 2001 he has been CEO of the Alcen Group, made up of over thirty high-tech companies active in the following sectors: defense & security, energy, medical & healthcare, aeronautics & space, large scientific instruments. He also chairs the Foundation Connaissancedesenergies.org.
